Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Generally speaking politics is adjourned, and should adjourn for the duration. The only exception to this rule of true patrioism, should be a patriotic exception. We believe that the Republican party should function, in what is known in England, as the loyal opposition. This opposition should be directed primarily to reducing in so far as possible, the enormous wastes of a wartime economy imposed on the even larger wastes of eight years of peace under the New Deal.

As a matter of fact, the California state legislature, working through party coalition, is doing just exactly that, despite a governor, who until recently, at least, has been spending tax payers' money with both hands. It is true that the Republican leadership of California, cannot take all credit for this campaign to stop waste, but we think anyone cognizant of the fact will give state Republican leadership major appreciation for its efforts in that direction. The state budget is now being pruned wherever pruning can be done without interfering with vital state functions. This is done to offset to some extent the imposition of federal taxes, already heavy, which will probably be doubled in the next few months.

Looking abroad to states with Republican administrations, we find that Governor James of Pennsylvania and the legislature have reduced the biennial budget 10 per cent. The 1939-41 budget has been reduced from $607,000,000 to $543,000,000 for 1941-43.

The new Republican administration in Indiana has enacted into law virtually every pledge of the 1940 State Republican platform. In doing so a new record for economy has been made, and the state treasury will have a favorable balance of more than $10,000,000 by 1943, in spite of the dire prediction of Democrats that the program would result in a huge deficit and in spite of the 50 per cent reduction in the gross income tax for retailers.

Republican South Dakota had a delightful "problem" on its hands this spring. Governor Bushfield's administration piled up a new surplus in 1940, and the question was What to do about it? It was generally agreed that taxes should be cut but there were different opinions as to which taxes should be given the axe.

It was finally agreed to slash one cent from the sales tax, reduce the personal income tax, and turn over the remainder of the saving to various school districts. The $4,150,000 saved last year brings the total for the Bushfield administration since 1939 to $7,650,000. The annual state expenditure is approximately $29,000,000.

Just now the agency which seems to be wasting more of the tax payers' dollars than any other is the Untied States Army. This fact is recognized in Congress and that body is taking steps to investigate Army expenditures thoroughly. There is good reason to believe that the WPA, into which billions of good American dollars were poured will be wiped out of existence in June or July. War time wastes will readily take up where WPA quit.

Joseph Martin's call to Republicans to gird for the struggle to protect "our American way of life" was delivered in a nation-wide radio broadcast in which he declared that "a vigorous courageous Republican Party is essential to police and audit the New Deal Administration as it revels in the spending of thirty or forty billions of dollars, and in the possession of vast and unparalleled powers granted it only because of the urgent needs of national defense."

Quest Begins For Robber In This City

Victim Forced To Drive Bandit To This City

A widespread search is being conducted by the city police for a burglar who held up an Auburn service station attendant Saturday night and forced him to drive him to Nevada City in a stolen car.

At gun point, the service station employee, Harry F. Pwen, 20, was ordered to hand over approximately $50 in cash and then the robber forced him to enter a car which was parked at the service station and drive to this city.

Pwen was ordered to stop the car at the Food Palace lot and the burglar sped into the darkness after telling the youth:

"Don't leave this car for 15 minutes. I have a man watching you."

The youth, however, ran to the police station a few minutes after the robber disappeared into the darkness. He gave a good description to Chief of Police Max Solaro and the search for the bandit began immediately.

Narrow Gauge Depot Appropriately Dedicated

Dinner Attended by Many Precedes Formal Dedication

Appropriate dedicatory services were held Friday night at the Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad's new depot following an "open house" reception, during which hundreds of county residents took advantage of the railroad company's offer to thoroughly inspect the new structure, the office buildings therein, and the freight terminal.

The dedication was by J. Farr Taylor, president and general manager of the narrow gauge, and the depot was accepted in behalf of the residents of the county by Mayor John R. Thomas of Grass Valley.

The dedication followed a dinner at the Bret Harte Inn. The dinner was given by the railroad and was attended by approximately 75 dignitaries of the county.

The dinner program was opened by George Calanan of Nevada City, a director of the railroad, who traced the history of the narrow gauge since it was founded.

All the speakers lauded the railroad officials for their progressiveness and complimented them on the new depot, which takes the place of the old depot destroyed by fire last October.

Manager Taylor, however, expressed his firm and sincere belief that cooperative enterprise rather than individual force was responsible for the erection of the new building and the growth of the railroad. He told of the cooperation of the mines, the major oil companies, shippers and various organizations with the narrow gauge.

Commander A. W. Scott, world-wide traveller and announcer for the Greyhound bus lines on its air program, Romance of the Highways, took part in the dinner gathering and was master of ceremonies at the dedicatory exercises. Scott announced the winners of the tire contest sponsored by the narrow gauge as a feature of its depot opening program. Tom Terrill of Grass Valley was awarded first prize, guessing the huge Greyhound bus tire was used 60,785, slightly over 100 miles over the correct answer of 60,657. Other winners were J. B. Hocking, Marian McArthur, Allen Newell, Earl Cosper, Mrs. E. M. Mackey and Melvin Hamilton of Grass Valley; A. T. O'Connor of French Corral, Mrs. J. Hayman of Auburn and W. B. Lewis of Nevada City.

Speakers presented at the banquet by Calanan were W. H. Starling, traffic manager for Greyhound; and a former secretary of President John Dwyer of the Southern Pacific Company, who as a small boy carried water to the Narrow Gauge bridge workers near Colfax; Cliff Shores, district travel agent; Bert Kafford, Greyhound advertising; Ted Finkbonner, schedules supervisor for

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder at the whatters now,
"And what," you say, " are they?"
Oh, people just like you and me,
Composed of common clay;
But with their eyebrows lifted high
They take a sturdy stand,
And come and go quite regularly
A whatting through the land.

I wonder if anywhere there is a more disconcerting person than the chronic whatter. You know him; a group of friends and acquaintances may be engaged in pleasant and profitable conversation—may even be arriving at conclusions, when suddenly the whatter utters a resounding "what?" and throws the entire company into blushing confusion.

The professional whatter, whats you no whats that you can answer—that is not his fashion. No, his range of whats runs the gamut, from "what will the English do with Mussolini's African Empire?" to, "what would happen to humanity if the sun went out?" Of course he, himself, has no answer to his own whats, so there is no satisfaction to be found even in confessing that you don't know; he can't elucidate.

I wonder if the whatter in propounding his unanswerable whats is simply trying to overawe us with his amazing mental superiority. Perhaps the best way to come up with him is say in weary tones, "I'm sure I don't know," and then continue the orginal line of conversation.

I wonder at the adult propensity for collecting playthings—the very real pleasure we grown ups derive from the possions of all sorts of figureines with which to clutter up bureau tops, tables, shelves and even wall space. How genuinely fond we become of these little nonsensical bits of interior decoration and how we miss them when some careless hand removes them from their accustomed places. I, myself, have a miniature totem pole. a Buddahistic incense burner, a china cat, and a statuette of Paul Bunyan. Now isn't that a conglomeration of articles?

I don't know why adult men and women are so attracted by childish toys; but they are, and so, at this time, I wish some enterprising maker of toys, would create for every American household a small replica of the statue of Liberty. I'd like to have one conspicuously displayed upon my desk. I'd like a picture of Miss Libert toy hang upon the wall and stickers for window panes and wind shields. We were enveloped by blue eagles a few years ago; why not a multiplicity of liberty statuettes now?

I wonder what small but heroic nation will be known to future generations as the Alamo of civilization. Greece, Yugo-Slavia or perchance some even smaller nation whose only offence is its determination to be free.

Uncle Silas says: "I don't see how the Irish can sit calmly on the side line and watch a fight they are not in. Thats not like the Irishers you know; what ails 'em?"

THEY KNEW WHAT THEY WANTED TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

The pathetic loneliness of two people from contrasting walks of life, and the unexpected consequences when Fate brings them together, provides the striking theme of RKO Radio's "They Knew What They Wanted," co-starring Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton.

This great drama opens Wednesday night in the Nevada Theatre.

Laughton has one of the most unique roles of his colorful career as Tony Patucci, jovial California vinyardists who yearns for wife to share his modest wealth and picturesque ranch. Miss Lombard enacts a hard-working waterfront waitress lonely and discouraged.

When Tony visits San Francisco on brief vacation, he sees the young lady, but is too bashful to approach her. But he does enter into a correspondence courtship with her, which eventualy leads to the lonesome hashslinger accepting his marriage proposals.

From this point on the vivid, realistic story reaches spectacular dramatic heights. Tony's handsome foreman turns out ot be a disturbing element, and when the happy Tony is seriously injured on the night preceeding the wedding, it precipitates a crisis. A romantic interlude between the bride-to-be and the amorous foreman leads to further complications which are said to build to one of the most powerfully emotional climaxes seen on the screen in a decade.

William Gargan plays the restless foreman, while Harry Carey, Frank Fay, Joe Bernard and Janet Fox have other prominent roles.

North San Juan Child Suffers Severe Burns Playing With Matches

Arlene Ennis, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Ennis of North San Juan, is in the Nevada County Hospital with severe burns as the result of playing with matches.

Mrs. Gordon Kessler was burned severely on her hands in an attempt to beat out the flames on the child's clothing.

The Ennis child and three companions were playing in the woodshed of the Kessler home when her dress caught fire. Screams attracted Mrs. Kessler. The child has second and third degree burns on the chest, abdomen and legs.

THIS WEEK in DEFENSE

President Roosevelt, in a press conference, said that although the U. S. rearmament program is being greatly accelerated, he is still not satisfied with the rate of production.

Director General Knudsen of the Office of Production Management said that "during the last seven months we have actually started, and more than 60 percent completed 784 new factories," employed thousands of contractors, commandeered all existing shipyards and ordered seven new ones. He itemized progress and needed production increases as follows:

.30 cal. machine guns—"ahead of schedule," need 500 percent increase; .50 cal. machine guns—"9 percent ahead of schedule," need 1000 percent increase; 13-ton tanks — "fair rate," need 100 percent increase; 26-ton tanks—"production deliberately held up" by the Government; powder production and TNT—"on schedule"; rifles — "ahead of schedule," need 100 percent increase; machine guns —"ahead of schedule," need 500 percent increase; aluminum — "production increased from 25 million lbs. a month a year ago to 40 million lbs. a month," need 70 million lbs. a month; magnesium — "production doubled," need six-fold increase; supplies and equipment — "satisfactory" Army and Navy housing — contruction over half completed; need 44,500 buildings and 95,000 tent frames.

Vice President Wallace, speaking in New York, said, "we are not working hard enough. We do not realize that our very lives are at stake and that speed now may make the difference of millions of lives in this hemisphere."

Sub-contracting

The OPM published a booklet describing successful farming-out methods used by private companies and local, regional and labor-management groups in obtaining defense work. Under Secretary of War Patterson cited the $88,000,000 smokeless powder plant at Charleston, Ind., as an example of how a single defense project draws in the resources of the entire Nation. Mr. Patterson said 65 subcontractors with headquarters in 13 States and several hundred subsubcontractors equaly scattered were involved in the Charleston work; license plates form 36 States could be seen at the workers' parking lot; and nearly every manufacturing State is supplying something—glass from Maine, doors from Iowa, brass fitting from Alabama, stainless steel from Illinois, etc.

The National Resources Planning Board issued a booklet on "Federal Aids to Local Planning," detailing service available to local planning groups.

Agriculture

The Department of Agriculture began expansion of the ever-normal granary program to assure ample supplies of pork, dairy products, eggs and poultry by buying n the open market to support long-term prices at these levels: hogs (cwt.), $9.00; dairy products (butter-pound basis). $0.31; chickens (lb.), $0.15; eggs (doz.), $0.22. The President explained the program was primarily a stabillization matter—to present reasonable assurance to hog producers, for example that the price of pork will be at a fair level when specially fattened animals are ready for market.

Consumer Protection

The President combined the Defense Commission divisions of price stabilization and consumer protection into an Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. The new agency is designed to prevent rising cost of living, hoarding and profiteering and provide for the necessary supply and equitable distribution of materials and commodities for civilian uses.The President cited the "draft industry" clause of the Selective Service Act as authority for enforcing orders of the new office.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that retail food costs for most wage earners have risen 2.9 percent since March, 1940—including one-half of one percent last month. The Bureau reported higher prices for meat, dairy products and eggs, and lower prices for cereals, bakery products, fruit, vegetables, fats and oils, beverages and sugar.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board announced that construction costs for a standard home contiuue to rise—although the rate of increase in declining.

Selective Service

Selective Service Headquarters amended regulations to permit 10 instead of five days notice of induction to registrants and a postponement of induction for 60 days when necessary to avoid "unusual individual hardship."

The System also advised local boards to request registrants who are doctors to apply for commissions in the Medical Corps Reserve and ruled that registrants who are seamen may be deferred when they are essential to a ship.

The System designated six reforestation and soil conservation work projects in California, Colorado, Indiana, Maryland, Virginia and Michigan to which conscientious objectors may be assigned.

The Army

The War Department estimated Army strength at 1,185,600—68,611 officers and 1,117,000 enlisted men, as follows: 487,000 Regular Army, 286,000 National Guard, 38,000 Reserve, 374,000 trainees. In an Army Day radio speech Chief of Staff General Marshall said:

"Remarkable progress has been made . . . our men have drilled and worked through all kinds of weather and under all sorts of conditions. The Army now emerges as an organized force."

General Marshall quoted Rep. Wadsworth of New York (R) as telling Congress with respect to food, order and absence of disease "I think there has been nothing like it in military history. No Army has ever made such a record."

Labor

The U. S. Conciliation Service announced settlement of 54 strikes during the current week, including the Ford Motor Company controversy. Secretary of Labor Perkins certified the following strikes to the Defense Mediation Board: Phelps-Dodge Copper products Corporation, Elizabeth, N. J.; Seas Shipping Company, New York City; J. Sklar Manufacturing Company, Long Island, N. Y.; and the Cowles Tool Company, Cleveland, Ohio. The board announced settlement of the Allis-Chalmers and Seas Shipping Company strikes at West Allis, Wis., and New York City, respectively.

"We must police and audit the New Deal Administration to protect our country from financial, political and social bankruptcy," Martin asserted.

On the heels of Martin's plea to his party to perform "the thankless but patriotic and essential task of policing and auditing" the New Deal, Republicans in Congress served notice that they proposed to expose waste, extravagance and discrimination in connection with the construction of the army cantonments.

Representative Albert Engel, Michigan Republican on the House Appropriation Committee, revealed the first two reports of investigations he had made of a number of army camps. These concerned Camp Blanding in Florida and Fort George G. Meade in Maryland. Engel told the House of Representatives he had found that 40 per cent of Camp Blandng's 117,000 acres were below the level of a near by lake; that this fact had increased costs by more than $740,000 for a drainage system and dredging; that it had cost around $10,000 to remove some 1,500 tents out of the mud; that the Army had bought 5 miles of 60 pound rails from the Southern Railroad for the camp, whereas Army regulations prescribed as a minimum 80 pound rails; that the roads built with crushed rock supplied by a newly formed contracting partnership had cost $1,24.000, whereas engineers contended that $547,000 could have been saved by the use of sand, oil and clay binder.

Turning to Fort George G. Meade the Michigan Republican pointed out that the original estimate for its construction was $9,053,187 but that now it is estimated it actually will cost $23,117,000. Overtime payments to labor—due in part to correct a discrimination in wage rates for which Secretary of Labor Perkins was responsible accounted for $1,808,320 of the increased cost, Engel charged. Of the 8,113 workers listed on payroll as carpenters, 35 per cent were not carpenters at all, Engel found.

EPISCOPALIANS

for centuries as the Flag of Faith of the Christian Church throughout the world. The blue of the dexter chief in the upper left hand corner is the light blue of the sky, often used by old artists for the clothing of the Blessed Virgin. It is called Madonna Blue and represents the Human Nature of Our Lord, which He received from His Mother. The crosses in the field of blue have upon them tiny crosslets which are symbolical of the spread of Christianity. The nine crosses are arranged in the form of a St. Andrew's Cross to commemorate the fact that Bishop Samuel Seabury, our first American bishop, was consecrated in Scotland.

The presentation will be made by Mrs. Lloyd Dudley, and the flag bearers will be Misses Rita and Ruth Hutchison.
